COURSE PRESENTATION

Prerequisite:

Students undertaking this course should normally have successfully completed at least one semester at university, or have equivalent experience. They must have some ability to work as a group and be able to communicate easily in English at a standard university level. In other respects, the course is intended to serve a mix of profiles and learning backgrounds for a more diverse international learning experience.

Content:

This course will provide students with an overview of the main European policies and how Member States deal with them. Why does the European Union exist? How shall the Union solve economic, social, and environmental problems? Does the Union have enough competences to act on behalf of the Member States? How can we conceive the future of the European Union? The existence of this international organization implies a general questioning of its general purpose.

Through different topics, we try to understand how the European Union and Member States interact. The European Union appears as a flexible organization according to different policies: among the 28 Member States, only 19 are part of the Eurozone, 26 only belong to the Schengen area, including Switzerland, Iceland and Norway, while the United Kingdom is asking to withdraw from the EU. On the other side, in 2015 and 2016, thousands of migrants from Syria and Middle East attempted to access the EU. On other legal issues, the Charter of Fundamental Rights would apply only partially to Poland and the UK and, ultimately, the Czech Republic; the “space of freedom, security and justice” does not apply to the UK and Ireland; Denmark does not participate in political advocacy, justice and home affairs, or the 3rd stage of European Monetary Union.
Class sessions will cover:

- Multilingualism in the European culture: linguistic knowledge and recognition of the functioning of the EU law and the policies regarding multilingualism
- European history: from Greek Antiquity to the 20th century and the European Idea through centuries
- European treaties from Rome to Lisbon, over 50 years of construction
- The enlargement of the EU: the conditions to integrate the European Union and the current candidates States in 2017
- Economic crisis: the EU competences in economic matters and the appropriate European measures to solve the economic crisis
- Human rights & protection of minorities through European institutions and EU competences in Human Rights matters
- Populism in Europe: political statement on populism in Europe at the EU level
- Europe of the regions
- Environment in the EU: environmental challenges and implementation of environmental law
- Evaluation and wrap up

The course also includes a visit to the Parlamentarium in Brussels, Belgium, to learn more about history, EU competences, and current challenges.

Learning Outcomes:

At the end of the course, the students should be able to:

- identify the different frameworks of European Union, Euro zone, Schengen area
- identify the most important facts of integration, the main European policies, and the ways in which Member States deal with them
- utilize some of the major EU legal and regulatory acts
- explain the roles and influences of the various institutions and competences of the European Union versus the States
- identify and analyse some of the main challenges faced by the EU
