Initiatives such as Humanité – a living campus dedicated to social innovation and inclusion – our service-learning programs, partnerships with more than 600 universities and multiple public and private partners, and other human-centered projects (such as our Humanités path) illustrate this long-term commitment. Through these efforts, we educate thoughtful, responsible, and engaged citizens, ready to meet new challenges and contribute to a more caring and sustainable world.

The Université Catholique de Lille has undergone profound changes over the past decade in order to become an internationally renowned "Third Place" for the reinvention of society and of a more sustainable, more ethical future, combining innovative research and pedagogy across its faculties, grandes écoles, and healthcare sector, along with varied ecosystems, demonstrator buildings, and experimental urban neighbourhoods. Our efforts and innovations in these areas will continue and indeed intensify over the coming years. In the meantime we are also focused on:

- offering students a true life experience: A global vision of the person demands that we enable students to engage in a full range of intellectual, physical, relational, and spiritual activities, not merely scientific and intellectual training.
- "taking care": The University is heavily invested in the idea of taking care of others – of the sick and elderly and of the most disadvantaged in society, both locally and internationally – and of the earth itself, through greater efforts at sustainability. We believe that "taking care" should in its broadest sense extend across all disciplines and all three University missions: training, research, and service to society.

Working together, combining our efforts, desires, ideas, commitments, and achievements, we will be able to make a visible, understandable, and meaningful contribution to a world in transition.

A strong commitment to transition, preparing the world of tomorrow

In 2022, the University reaffirmed its commitment to the climate through the #ClimateltlsTime (#ClimatllEstTemps) campaign and through numerous conferences, workshops, and other activities. The end of the year was marked by the very first "University Climate Convention," which brought together the entire University community – students, faculty, staff, and local residents.

The commitment of the Université Catholique de Lille is shared across its faculties and schools, many of which offer specialized programs emphasizing sustainable development. Recent years have seen the emergence of additional spaces for education, research, and experimentation. New buildings have been designed and built in order to limit their carbon impact and demonstrate good practices. The campus now benefits from more than 2,000 m² of solar panels and 15 energy transition experimentation sites, as well as from strong student participation, including 40 student associations dedicated to the environment.

Alumni corner

For over 25 years, the European Summer Program has been the catalyst of many students' international journeys. It has helped them become more empowered and active as today's global citizens. Here are just a few of those stories...

The European Summer Program helped me grow more independent and connect with both international and French students. The courses were impactful, broadening my knowledge and solidifying my desire to work in international business. Gaining a better understanding of French culture and its historical context set me up for success, giving me the confidence to continue taking courses in French and fundamentally shaping how I see myself as a global citizen.

Jennifer Jackson
University of Alberta
Canada - ESP 2007

That summer was very formative for me – it was the summer before my senior year, and I was still figuring out my academic and career path. Participation in the European Summer Program fundamentally shaped my choices: I ended up studying International Studies, pursuing a career in international development, signing up for another study abroad program, and eventually doing my graduate program in Europe. The program helped me to keep an open mind and make deep connections with the very interesting people I met, both inside and outside of the program.

Benjamin Stephan
Saint Louis University
United States of America -
ESP 2010

The opportunity to meet international students and explore France and Europe was a once-in-a-lifetime experience I couldn't miss. The ESP made me dream higher and think outside the box, pushing the limits of what I thought I could achieve. It was like an open box of opportunities! I gained much more self-confidence and realized I am capable of doing so much more outside of my comfort zone, inspiring me to consider studying or working abroad in the future.

Eileen Galvan Carvajal
Tecnológico
de Monterrey
Mexico - ESP 2022

The European Summer Program encouraged me to express my own ideas freely and to think more analytically. The teaching style gives you the chance to actually do things and learn for yourself: there are so many options and no single way of doing things, which I truly appreciate. The courses and field trips taught me to see art, architecture and culture on a much deeper level, and that is a way of thinking I want to carry with me. To anyone considering this program: do it! It has only strengthened my wish to pursue my Master's and PhD in Europe.

LILLE

a city of art, culture, and history

A rich history at the crossroads of Europe

Founded in 1066 by the Count of Flanders, Lille – Rijsel in Flemish – became an important trading and stock market point on the route between the rich Flemish towns and the Champagne fairs. As evident from some of its architecture, Lille was successively Flemish, Burgundian, and Spanish before finally becoming French in 1667 under Louis XIV, whose military engineer, Vauban, built Lille's impressive Citadel.

Yet the city has never stopped reinventing itself through successive economic, social, and power shifts. Lille's strategic location and the area's rich resources have made it one of the most fought over regions in Europe, a history visible today particularly through the numerous memorials from the last two World Wars in the region, toured by national and international visitors each year.

Big city advantages with small city atmosphere

Lille enjoys all of the conveniences of being at the centre of a cross-border urban zone with a population of over 2 million, yet remains a “human-sized” university city with under 250,000 inhabitants, nearly half of whom are under age 30! Visitors can get around easily on foot or by bicycle. Public transport also offers the metro, the tramway, and many bus lines running frequently and late into the night, not to mention convenient train connections to the rest of the region and indeed Europe as a whole.

Lille is one of only around fifteen cities in France to hold the national "Innovative and Sustainable Destination" label. Cycling is central to this commitment, with hundreds of kilometres of new cycle paths and greenways, many running through parks and along canals, helping bike use rise by almost 50% since 2019. More than 80 local hotels, restaurants and cultural venues have also adopted responsible practices, from reducing food waste to promoting accessibility and inclusion.

City of art & culture

Since its designation as a European Capital of Culture in 2004, Lille Métropole has sponsored themed arts festivals with specific international connections every few years. The city was also designated a World Design Capital in 2020. But the arts are on display all year, every year. Lille boasts a significant number of theatres, concert venues, movie theatres, an opera house, and a national orchestra. Annual cultural events include, among many others, the Lille Piano(s) Festival, International Independent Movie Week, the international "Series Mania" festival, the Wazemmes accordion festival, and the "Fête de la Musique" (country-wide) on 21 June with free concerts all over town.

And then there are all the world-renowned museums in the region, which include the centrally-located Palais des Beaux-Arts (boasting the largest art collection in France outside of Paris), the Louvre-Lens (a nearby outpost of the Louvre itself), La Piscine in Roubaix (built in a former art deco swimming pool), and a modern art museum with a unique collection. Most museums are free or have reduced rates for students.

More dynamic than ever
